

Robert T. Rolfs, Deputy Director Utah Department of Health

Dr. Rolfs is a physician trained in internal medicine and epidemiology. He is Deputy Director and State Epidemiologist in the Utah Department of Health. He is also the State Health Information Technology (HIT) Coordinator and holds faculty appointments at the University of Utah in public health and biomedical informatics. He sees patients ½ day per week at the 4th Street Clinic and enjoys time with his family as well as cycling, skiing, and hiking.

Education and Training:

University of Notre Dame, BS

Northwestern University Medical School, MD

Internal Medicine Residency, University of Cincinnati Medical Center

Academic General Internal Medicine Fellowship, Univ. Colorado Health Sciences Center

Epidemic Intelligence Service, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

University of Washington School of Public Health, Master of Public Health

Career History:

Utah Department of Health – 1993-present

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention – 1986-2006

University of Colorado School of Medicine – 1985-1986