

Serving Families During COVID-19

The Baby Watch Early Intervention Program is the state agency responsible for Part C early intervention (EI) services in Utah. All of our local EI programs continue to serve families during the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency. If you are concerned about the development of an infant or toddler:

1. Visit our website:
utahbabywatch.org

2. Find the local EI program
in your area.

3. Request a free
evaluation.

A New Way to Provide Services

- Evaluations and service visits take place via phone calls and video conferencing.
- Parent and family participation in virtual services is essential—our team will teach you how to support your child’s development in everyday routines.
- Your local EI program will communicate with you via text messages, email, and the Baby Watch online Parent Portal.

Help Me Grow Utah

If your child is not eligible for early intervention, additional information about child development and parenting is available from Help Me Grow Utah. FREE child development screenings are available on helpmegrowutah.org in both English and Spanish.

Stay safe. We are in this together!
